REFLECTIONS FROM OUR PRESIDENT AND EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Welcome to the 2013 Annual Report. We are proud to relay that, thanks to the generosity of our supporters, the dedication of our Board of Directors, and the professionalism of our staff, the Door County Land Trust ended 2013 a healthy, strong and vibrant organization!

A strong land trust is part of a strong community. The 6,500 acres we've protected provide inspiring places for recreation, education and contemplation. They help to purify our water and air. They provide refuge for the rare and diverse wildlife that call Door County home and enrich our lives. And, because they possess great beauty, our protected lands reinforce the very foundation upon which our tourism economy is built.

Preserving the places people treasure, the places that make us healthier, is work we're honored to do. Our board and staff recently spent a retreat day together at Bjorklunden Lodge in Baileys Harbor. Our task? To assess the Land Trust's growth over the past five years and begin crafting our vision for the next five years. We challenged ourselves to look to the "whys"—Why do we preserve land? Why does it matter to our community? Why does it matter to us personally? With twenty-two people seated around conference tables and a view of frozen Lake Michigan in the distance, we spoke of sacred childhood memories, of concerns for grandchildren (and grandparents) who spend too much time indoors and on screens, of the increasing need for places to seek perspective and solitude and peace. We expressed the need to speak for the plants and animals that cannot speak for themselves. And, always, we returned to the overarching theme of the day, the topic of sustainability and perpetuity.

One of the commitments the Land Trust makes to the community is the promise that our lands will be protected and cared for forever. Although daunting, this is a promise we're committed to keeping. Fortunately, we have help doing so! This Annual Report is filled with lists and photos—the names and faces of people who have asked themselves the same questions we wrestled with at our retreat and who feel deep in their hearts that land preservation does matter. The Land Trust community has a great story to tell and great folks to tell it. We are only as strong as the sum of our parts and that is why the accomplishments described in this 2013 Annual Report are your successes, too. Thank you for being part of the land preservation community. We hope you enjoy reading the good news you're helping create!

Sincerely,

Tim Stone
President

THE LAND: HIGHLIGHTS FROM 2013

In 2013, the Door County Land Trust...

- Secured purchase agreements on 5 properties that will establish two new nature preserves (on North Bay and Washington Island) and expand 3 existing preserve areas (at Three Springs, Big and Little Marsh and Detroit Harbor);
- Made preparations to accept 2 land donations, one along a pristine stretch of Hibbards Creek near Jacksonport and another along the shore of Washington Island;
- In partnership with other groups and agencies, began work on an ambitious initiative to establish a 1,000-acre nature preserve on Chambers Island;
- Enlisted the help of 82 land stewardship volunteers who donated over 1000 hours of time on Land Trust nature preserves;
- Wrote Land Management Plans for over 25 Land Trust-protected areas to guide future stewardship work;
- Launched a landscape-wide initiative to improve water quality and habitat protection along the Niagara Escarpment between Sturgeon Bay and Egg Harbor;
- With help from The Clearing, built kestrel boxes to be installed on Land Trust properties;
- Eradicated invasive plants on hundreds of acres of wildlife habitat;
- Removed thousands of pounds of debris from newly acquired properties;
- Expanded the hiking trail system at our Lautenbach Woods Nature Preserve;
- Partnered to apply for grants for a 2014-2015 project at our Sturgeon Bay Ship Canal Nature Preserve designed to restore ecological health to this spectacular landscape;
- Welcomed and trained 18 new volunteer Preserve Stewards who will help manage and oversee Land Trust-owned properties.

Sustaining Our Natural Communities, Sustaining Ourselves

Surrounded by the cool waters of Lake Michigan, the Door County Peninsula and islands are unrivaled when it comes to their natural splendor. We share this grand place with a great diversity of plants, animals and landscapes and at the core of the Land Trust's mission is the protection of this natural abundance.

In addition to preserving Door County's awe-inspiring scenic beauty, the Door County Land Trust is protecting some of the best remaining natural areas in Wisconsin for a multitude of species, including a few so rare they can only be found in a handful of places and may cease to exist without an intentional and coordinated effort to save them.

Through careful stewardship of our protected lands, future generations—of plants, animals and people—will inherit a county at least as ecologically healthy and beautiful as the one we know today.

“The practice of conservation must spring from a conviction of what is ethically and aesthetically right, as well as what is economically expedient. A thing is right only when it tends to preserve the integrity, stability, and beauty of the community, and the community includes the soil, waters, fauna, and flora, as well as people.”

The People

"We retired to Door County because we'd had enough 'pavement pounding' and loss of nature in our earlier lives. So when the chance to preserve the canal property occurred, it was a no-brainer - do whatever possible to save this splendid place. Thanks to the Land Trust and many, many dedicated folks, the Ship Canal Nature Preserve has become and will remain a public treasure."

A Sense of Community

At the heart of land preservation is community. The Door County community is blessed to have many people—young and old, newcomers and natives, artists and entrepreneurs—who recognize the inherent benefit and need to protect the lands that enrich the lives of us all. We believe so strongly in the value of preservation that we write checks, volunteer our time and talent and share our deep passion with friends and neighbors. Although we come from different backgrounds and have had different experiences, we are united in a common love for this fragile and beautiful stretch of land called Door County.

Whether you love Door County for the interplay between land and water, for its unique geology, for its rare plants and animals or for its magnificent views and vistas, the bottom line is... this county inspires! And, when people and communities are inspired, they can do wonderful things.

We invite you to let the lands we preserve inspire you. Drive by and take in the wind-swept fields, walk secluded trails, listen to songbirds, gaze up into the cathedral-like canopy of branches above you and down to the wildflowers at your feet. Reacquaint yourself with wonder and share that wonder with others. The Door County Land Trust offers many opportunities throughout the year to discover, appreciate and better understand the places you've helped protect. Join us for a planned event or explore on your own.

THE COMMUNITY: HIGHLIGHTS FROM 2013

In 2013, the Door County Land Trust...

- Offered 27 Explore the Door guided hikes that were attended by over 285 people, 165 of them new to the Explore the Door series;
- Readied the new Heins Creek Nature Preserve south of Baileys Harbor for the public by installing signage, a parking area and a trail system;
- Installed ‘welcome registers’ at several nature preserves to gauge the number of visitors to these preserves and to record observations;
- Celebrated with over 500 Land Trust supporters at our 15th Annual Friends of the Land Trust Gathering;
- Enlisted the help of over 300 volunteers who gave well over 3,000 hours of their time helping in the offices, out on the lands, and with community events and outings;
- In partnership with Ministry Door County Medical Center, launched our new Take a Hike and Call Me in the Morning series to expose the community to the many health and spiritual benefits of time spent outdoors;
- Distributed thousands of complimentary copies of our popular Hiking Trails of the Door County Land Trust maps;
- Received funding and began work developing new informational kiosks and interpretive signage for many of our nature preserves;
- Began an extensive overhaul of our website—look for a new, easier-to-use, interactive site in the summer of 2014!

A LASTING IMPACT: HIGHLIGHTS FROM 2013

In 2013, the Door County Land Trust...

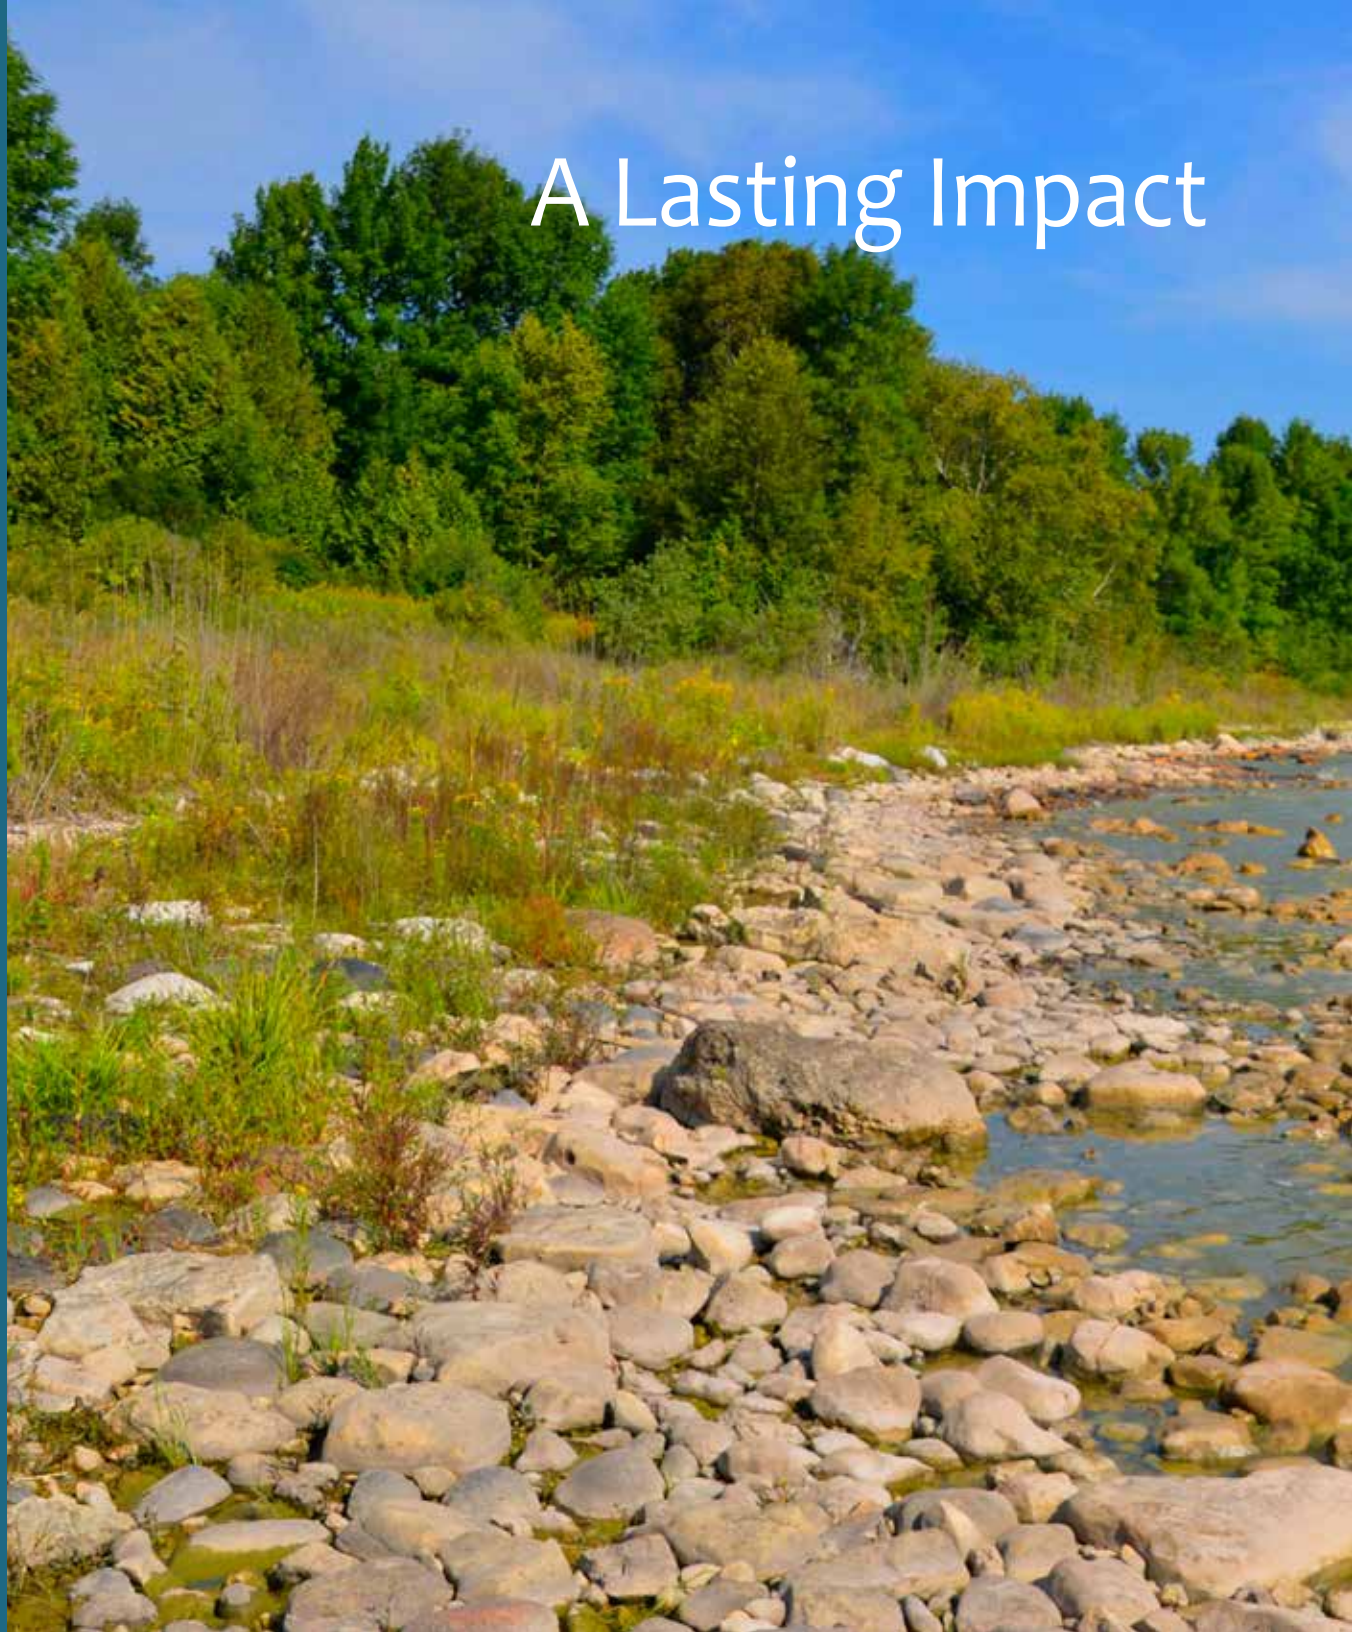

- Created two new annual giving circles, the Grand Peninsula Society and the Northern White Cedar Society (see page 13);
- Offered an Estate Planning Seminar attended by 30 Land Trust and community members;
- Formed a 6-person team to steer us through the National Land Trust Accreditation process;
- Increased our organizational capacity by forming a Volunteer Task Force to improve how we recruit, recognize and place Land Trust volunteers;
- Adopted a policy requiring funds be contributed to our Stewardship Endowment for the long-term care of every property protected;
- Adopted a policy requiring at least half of every unrestricted bequest be placed in the Stewardship Endowment.

"The continued success of the Door County Land Trust will depend upon the support and dedication of present and future generations of Land Trust members. We consider it a privilege to be members of the Northern White Cedar Society, supporting preservation of the lands we have come to know and love."

A Lasting Impact

The Promise of Perpetuity

As a land trust, we are committed to preserving land in perpetuity... and that's a long, long time. While we go about our day-to-day work—creating new nature preserves, writing land acquisition grants or planning the next land restoration project—we have one eye always focused on “forever.” We ask ourselves: Can the land preservation community of the future fulfill the promises we're making today? Will they have the resources they need to adequately steward the lands we leave them? Are they prepared to build on our successes? The true measure of our success as a land preservation community lies in how we answer these questions.

There are many pieces to the perpetuity puzzle—a committed base of annual support, a well-funded Stewardship Endowment, strong conservation partners, dedicated volunteers, professional staff, a wise board of directors and an engaged community that values our work, to name just some. The puzzle comes together when all of these interlocking pieces are in place.

There is great hope and satisfaction in preserving the places we treasure. There is even greater hope in knowing our work will stand the test of time.

“Land trusts don't have the luxury of NOT being here in 50 or 100 years. We are in the business of perpetuity; we've got to think long-term.”
